

Thank you for the excellent ECFS. Telephone solicitations are out of control. Telemarketing firms use automated high speed calling techniques with no regard for the negative effects on the public. More effective controls are necessary to protect the public from this invasion of privacy. Listen to the outcry over the abuse and reasonable people can reach only one conclusion. Do your job and support a tough proactive telephone consumer protection act. We do not want a watered down set of unenforceable rules full of special interest loopholes.
